Industry Needed To Give Markets For Farm Produce

Luther Ellison, Addresses Hope Kiwanis and C. of C. Directors

PROVED IN CAMDEN Increase in City Pay Rolls Brought Revival of Abandoned Farms

Agriculture without adequate markets is unprofitable, but the small city that has good agriculture around it and industrial pay rolls to provide a suitable market, has the best-balanced community life on earth. Luther Ellison, secretary of the Camden and South Arkansas Chambers of Commerce, told Hope Kiwanis club and the board of directors of Hope Chamber of Commerce at the Capital hotel Friday night.

Mr. Ellison had been invited to Hope by the Kiwanians, who also had arranged for the attendance of the directors of the local chamber of commerce.

The Camden man, noted for his inspirational speeches, confined his address Friday night to a recital of the facts behind Camden's industrial expansion the last seven or eight years. Ten years ago he said, Ouachita county showed 600 farms abandoned since 1910. Camden, an old river trading town hurt by the coming of the railroads, was slowly drying up—and with the decline of the Camden markets, Ouachita agriculture also went down.

Eight years ago the younger leaders of Camden business knew something had to be done about it. Mr. Ellison said, "The younger leaders of Camden business knew something had to be done about it. Mr. Ellison said, "The younger leaders of Camden business knew something had to be done about it."

Firm Follows Markets

Sixteen new industrial pay rolls have been added to Camden in recent years, with but one failure, Mr. Ellison pointed out. With the achievement of this program and the re-establishing of Camden's markets, Ouachita agriculture also boomed, and half the farms that had been abandoned in the previous 10 years were again placed under cultivation, the speaker said.

He brought to Hope this idea: That industrial development will have to depend more upon home people, home capital, home enterprise, rather than any foreign-owned development.

"The past history of Arkansas tells the story," Mr. Ellison said. "Great lumber companies launched their enterprises throughout our state, but with no thought of becoming a permanent part of our commonwealth. Great libraries, office buildings and other memorials established in their home cities testify to the wealth that foreign capitalists found in Arkansas and took a way—a wealth and an opportunity which our own people overlooked."

A Job For Us

"We are overlooking similar opportunities today—and no one will develop them for the good of our own state unless we wish to do the job ourselves."

The meeting was presided over by Lyle M. Webb, president of Kiwanis. John P. Cox made the speech of welcome to the chamber board of directors. Response was by Alex. H. Washburn, president of the chamber, who introduced the board members and the chamber secretary Joe R. Floyd, and later made the introductory speech presenting M. Ellison.

Miss Harriet Story entertained at the piano during the meal, and Leffel Gentry led Kiwanis in community singing.

Grew Confirmed as Togo Envoy

To Leave Turkey at Once for Conferences in Washington

WASHINGTON—(AP)—With a crisis approaching in the Japanese-Chinese controversy at Shanghai, the Senate Friday approved Joseph Clark Grew as ambassador to Tokyo.

It is to leave his post as ambassador to Turkey within a few days and is expected to relieve W. Cameron Forbes as envoy to Japan within six or seven weeks. En route he will come to Washington to discuss Far Eastern problems with President Hoover and Secretary Stimson.

Girl's Death Held Due to Own Hoax

Heiress Wanted Sensation of Suicide, Went Too Far, Says Uncle

BOSTON—Elizabeth Barrett Cook, 20, Boston heiress whose strange death at sea has started investigation by two governments, was the victim of her own hoax, in the opinion of her uncle, Dr. Francis E. Carroll.

The girl died on the freighter Chinese Prince, homeward bound, after receiving in Naples a message falsely announcing the death in Boston of her fiancé, St. George Tucker Arnold.

Passengers who sailed with her on the crossing to Europe, in December, point to a similar hoax message received by the young woman off Lisbon. Later Miss Cook tried to kill herself by jumping overboard, and it was disclosed that she had sent the false communication to herself.

These friends insist that in the Chinese Prince episode she perpetrated a similar prank and in the suicide gesture which followed, she unintentionally took an overdose of sedatives to ease her supposed "nerves" and died.

"The Lisbon incident, related by these former fellow passengers is like Elizabeth and yet unlike her," said Dr. Carroll today.

"She was an exotic. If the Lisbon account is correct, my niece undoubtedly had an egotistic mania. Or perhaps I should say she was of the hysteroid type—the kind of person who likes to put herself in the limelight."

"Apparently she wanted the sensation of suicide. She did not want to die—she merely wanted to enact a movie of dying. This maudlin fancy, apparently caused her death, for in staking her unreal situation, it seems she took too much of whatever sedative she used. In putting on her thriller, she went too far."

"There was no doctor aboard and she was treated by laymen. Of course, I have not seen her for six years, so I have no first hand information of her recent condition. But apparently she was living too much on one side—and had more money than was good for her."

Mrs. M. R. Gibson Dies in Ft. Worth

Mother of John S. Gibson to Be Buried Here at 3 P. M. Sunday

Mrs. Mattie R. Gibson, 88, mother of John S. Gibson and a pioneer settler of Hempstead county, died Friday night at Fort Worth, Texas.

Her body is being brought to Hope Saturday night on the Texan. The funeral service is to be held at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon from the First Baptist church of Hope, with Dr. O. J. Wade, of Texarkana officiating.

Burial will be in Rose Hill cemetery. Mrs. Gibson was born at Camden, Miss., in 1844. She moved to Hope with her parents before the Civil war. In 1868 was married to the late Mr. John S. Gibson. They are survived by three sons, John S., Arthur, and Frank, and one daughter, Mrs. G. E. Cameron, of Fort Worth.

Mrs. Gibson also is survived by two brothers, Albert Powell of Memphis, Texas, and Henry Powell, of Bakersfield, Calif.

Pallbearers at the funeral Sunday will be: Active, Gus Haynes, Eugene White, Kline Snyder, Halley White, Eugene Hall, Ed Duffie. Honorary, John Haynes, Frank Porter, W. W. Duckett, R. M. LaGrone, Dr. R. B. Carrigan and C. S. Lowthorp.

Act 63 Assailed By County Judge

Makes Possible "Raids" by Promoters, Says Mr. Sewell of Miller

TEXARKANA, Ark.—(AP)—Constitutionality of Act 63, which charges has saddled the $30,000 Forest Park paving project indebtedness on Miller county, will be attacked in the courts and in the next legislative session, County Judge J. J. Sewell said Friday.

An injunction suit prohibiting further deductions from Miller county's road turnback will be filed against State Treasurer Roy V. Leonard, he said.

"Act 63 leaves the way open for any private promoter to launch a really improvement project regardless of the distance from main thoroughfares, and allows him to put over the proposition at the expense of public credit," the county judge charged.

Sewell declared Miller county has been outraged by being forced to assume a large portion of the cost of Forest Park paving, which he branded as practically worthless. He said the project was inflated greatly and that the county is forced to pay for the inflation.

Curiously, Miller county's loss is Sevier county's gain for from $25,000 to $30,000 in Forest Park bonds were substituted for the corresponding amount of original Sevier county courthouse bonds by M. W. Ekins & Co., Little Rock investment brokers, and a proportionate amount of what is paid out by Miller county for the retirement of Forest Park bonds will go to Sevier county.

So far, $4,100 had been withheld from Miller county's road turnback to be applied on Forest Park bonds.

Wet, Dry Support Seen For Garner

Blanton Predicts Texan Will Sweep Country, Debates With Schafer

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Endorsement of both "wets and dries" was claimed in the House Friday for Speaker Garner, a Democratic presidential policy possibility.

During a discussion of law suits involving Bishop James Cannon, Jr., Representative Blanton of Texas, an ardent prohibitionist, predicted Garner would sweep the country because "the people believe there is something here beside the liquor question."

Garner was brought into the discussion by Representative Schafer, Republican, Wisconsin, an anti-prohibitionist. He said that though Garner voted against the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act, he voted for "the notorious five-and-ten" law.

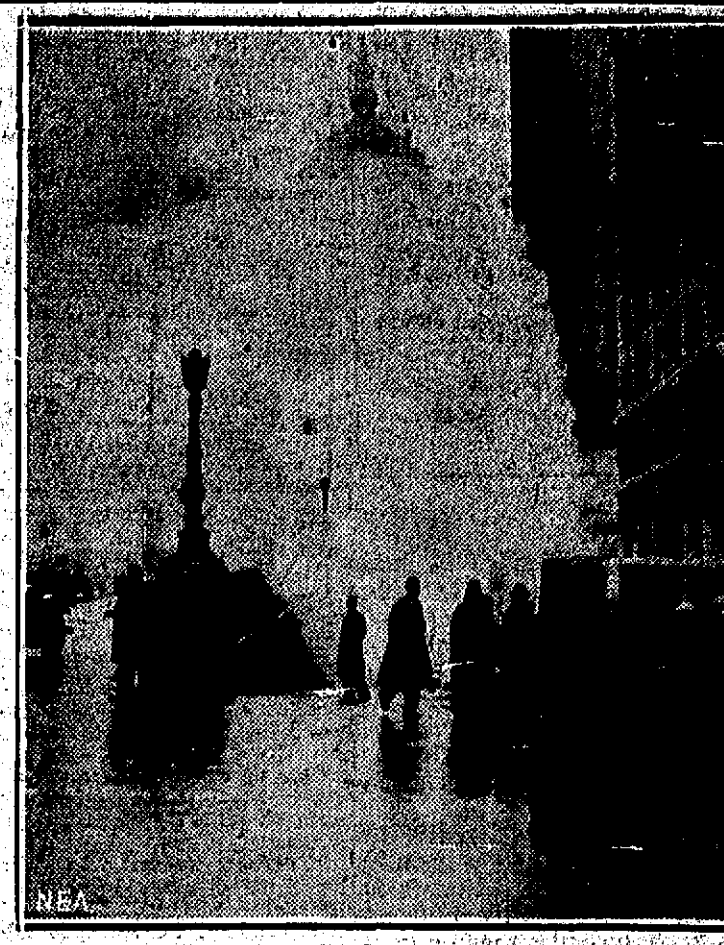

"We can realize why the father of the Eighteenth amendment, Senator Sheppard, and the step-father, William C. McAdoo, came out for him," Schafer said.

"My friend will find that the man I nominated will get every vote in the gentleman's district except one, because every Progressive he represents is going to vote for him," Blanton replied.

Schafer retorted that Garner, "who has been condemning delay and reorganization of the executive departments also voted for $24,000,000 to be given the executive, without restriction, for the purpose of dry law enforcement."

"I want to call the attention of the country to this," Blanton said, "that William Randolph Hearst, a notorious wet, endorses the man I nominated and this morning one of the great dries in the United States, William C. McAdoo, endorsed him. So you see he has the endorsement of the wets and the dries. It is an economic question."

Cleve Dunn Dies In Auto Accident

Missouri Pacific Chief Special Agent Killed; Companion Hurt

St. Louis, Mo.—(AP)—Cleve Dunn, 45, chief special agent for the Missouri Pacific railroad, with headquarters at Coffeyville, Kan., was killed, and Harold Rains, 23, of Van Buren, attorney for the railroad, was injured seriously about 8 o'clock Friday night when their coupe ran into a parked motor truck on the highway about four miles east of Van Buren. It is believed Dunn died instantly.

The coupe burst into flames immediately. Dunn's body, pinned under the steering wheel, could not be removed until the fire subsided, and then it was necessary to tear the tonneau apart.

Rains, who was driving, and who was taken to the Fort Smith hospital, told officers that the truck had no lights visible. It had been parked because of a broken axle, it was reported.

Dunn is survived by his mother, three sisters and a brother. Rains and his father, Harry Rains, are law partners.

Mr. Dunn first was employed by the Missouri Pacific railroad at Gurdon in 1916 as a special officer. He later was transferred to Little Rock and promoted to division special agent. Serving two years here, he was moved to Fort Smith in 1928 and about six months ago was transferred to Coffeyville, Kan.

John Parham, assistant chief special agent, when advised of Mr. Dunn's death Friday night, expressed regret, saying the railroad had lost a valuable man. Mr. Dunn is survived by his mother, three sisters, Mrs. Ethel Rose and Mrs. Bernice Mims, all of Little Rock, and Mrs. Burton Hess of Muskogee, Okla., and a brother, Walter Dunn of Little Rock.

Children Hurled To Death in Lake

Mother Thrown Down, Left Behind by Car

BRIDGETON, N. J.—In a case cause all of her three children, whooping cough and the young was sub-normal, Mrs. Mary V. Green, 26, wife of a politician, died Friday afternoon, drowned in the waters back of Tumbling Dam.

She had motored 10 miles from her home with the children. Leaving her car coat in the car, which was parked near the Bridgeton bridge, she hurried the children into Sunset lake and leaved in after them.

This was shortly after a police half an hour later Ellis Simpson, tender of the bridge, discovered the mother's body floating near the foot of the dam.

He called police, and a few minutes afterwards the body of the young Mrs. Green, Jr., four was found floating on the lake. Grappling soon brought up the bodies of the other two children—Leo, eight, and Mary, six.

Her husband, Sanford Green, former county superintendent of man, was grief stricken. He told authorities his wife had slipped out of the house with the children shortly after 1:30 p. m. and apparently drove around the country for some time before making up her mind to drown them and herself.

The strain of recent illness and the problem of the sub-normal child had resulted in a temporary mental derangement, the husband believed. She had tried to obtain medical aid for the sub-normal son and when told nothing could be done by a surgical operation, she sought to have him admitted to an institution for the feeble minded, but failed in this too.

The fact that there was no witness over the tragedy, except her husband, was reluctant to believe she had drowned the children and committed suicide, declaring his wife previously had displayed great courage in the face of their misfortune.

Holmes and Cardozo

GOOD many years ago Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes delivered an address to Harvard College students, in which he said:

"No man has earned the right in intellectual ambition to be a star. He has learned to lay his course by a star which he has never seen."

That sentence, somehow, takes on a new significance in the recent change in the supreme court of the United States.

Justice Holmes, stepping down, is replaced by Justice Cardozo, a worthy successor in every way; and the careers of these two men prove conclusively that it is possible for a man to follow this other-worldly, impractical advice which Justice Holmes gave the college men a generation ago and still win a high place in public life.

Ordinarily we look on public office as something that is bought with more or less base metal. The man who will not compromise with expediency, he must give up the privilege of always saying what he thinks, he must not let his right hand know what his left hand is doing. Politics, we are fond of saying, is a dirty game.

Perhaps we are right, in a good many cases. But we are always right. These two men, one leaving a high place, the other mounting to it, show us how completely our easy assumptions can be wrong.

How to lay a course by a star which he has never seen—that is, that mean, if not that the leader of men must trust to a star which is not always evident in the ordinary world, must be ready to let his fellows ride him, must be unceasingly faithful in sticking to the path as he has seen it?

A tough job for a man who would rise in public office? Very likely, yet few men ever retired from the supreme court to the acclaim that greeted Justice Holmes' retirement, and few men ever ascended to it as widely endorsed as is Justice Cardozo. And these two, throughout their careers, have lived up to that motto unceasingly.

The nation is always ready to put men of that kind in high places. The only trouble is that it can find so few of them.

A Tribute to the Jobless

ONE of the most striking features of the present depression has been the relative absence of violence on the part of unemployed workmen. Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, pointed out the point in a speech at Williamstown, Mass., the other day, and remarked:

"This depression has produced less mass demonstration, I believe, because of the recoil and actual fear of violence among the workers and the fear that such demonstrations would tie them up with the Communist theory of inevitable revolution."

That, apparently, is about the size of it; and there could not be a surer tribute to the solidity and intelligence of the American wage-earner. The American worker has not the slightest desire for a revolution. He simply wants a job, and if he has to wait a long time for it he can wait without breaking things.

Josephus Daniels

WHEN delegations of North Carolina citizens visited Josephus Daniels recently and urged him to become a candidate for governor, he refused, stating that he preferred to continue in his present post as newspaper editor, and adding that he could serve the people of his state more effectively in that capacity than he could in the gubernatorial chair.

The ideal conception of the newspaper editor's function and privilege has seldom been set forth.

To see it that one's fellow citizens are given honest, complete and unbiased accounts of the events of the day, to expose hidden wickedness and corruption and to do what one can to uphold the truth—is not that, after all, about as high an ambition as a man can entertain? And if a man is in a job where he can do those things, why should he long for public office?

Small Bonds Needed

ONE of the most interesting suggestions made in connection with the anti-hoarding campaign is the proposal that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation offer a good block of its $1,500,000,000 debentures in denominations small enough to attract the general public.

It is foolish to assail the practice of hoarding cash without realizing that it reflects a very widespread and deeply-rooted public distrust of many of the available mediums of investment. The best way to pull hoarded money back into circulation is to offer an investment about whose perfect safety there can be no possible argument.

Small-size bonds issued by the Corporation would provide such an investment; and it is easy to believe that, if they were made available, a perfect flood of hoarded money would come out to take advantage of the situation.

It was only a drop of dew that watered the heart of a rose. But the rose blossomed out her gracious smile.

A thing of beauty and grace for man in her fragrant garden close. It was only a tender thought of the future love and power. But a heart with pain and weep oppressed.

Through that lovely thought found strength and rest. And was healed that very hour.

Rookie's Faith in Seer
Lands Nashville Berth

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—(P)—Frank Severa, of Troop, Pa., has faith in fortune tellers, and so does James A. Hamilton, vice-president of the Nashville club of the Southern association.

Hamilton received the following letter: "I am a young catcher and a good one. Having been playing on local semi-pro teams for the past two years, I want to go into professional ball."

"While in New York last month I consulted a fortune teller. She told me I was going to play in the Southern league this season and in the big leagues next year. I'm giving Nashville the first chance at me. How about a contract?"

After requesting and receiving photographs and records, Hamilton decided to take a chance on the fortune teller. He mailed Severa a contract.

Woman Game Hunter
Goes After Tropical Fish

PALM BEACH—(P)—A woman bear hunter and her husband, both of whom have set enviable records as big game animals of the northwest, have launched an expedition which has as its goal capture of the largest possible assortment of tropical fish.

They are Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Peterson, of Nashua, N. H., who, after taking an eight-foot sailfish in the Gulf Stream near here, pushed on to more southern Florida waters.

Mrs. Peterson on her regular fall Canadian hunting trip last year bagged a black bear, a large bull moose and two large buck deer within three days. She killed the moose with a single rifle shot at more than 400 yards.

Cathedral at Carlisle, England—over eight centuries of religion.

(By NEA Service)

The names of Henry VIII, Queen Elizabeth and Charles I might echo through the ancient structure of the cathedral at Carlisle, England.

This old church was built hundreds of years before they were born, figured in their lives, and still stands today as an interesting event in their tempestuous careers.

Precisely when it was started perhaps is not definitely known. But the house of Augustinian canons was founded in 1102, and Henry I created the bishopric of Carlisle in 1133.

Once it was the church of the Augustinian monastery. Now it is unique as being the only ancient Augustinian church in England, prior to the Reformation, which was also the seat of a bishop.

Queen Elizabeth issued the first charter of incorporation of the town of Carlisle in 1566, for the cathedral—though one of the smallest in all England—had already gained great importance by that time.

Henry VIII endowed a grammar school, influenced by the cathedral, years before this.

And in 1638 Charles I issued another charter under which Carlisle continued to be governed until 1835.

Tradition says that the Scots destroyed the five west walls of the cathedral in 1645. The surviving two bays of the nave are plain and some of the humble Norman work of the twelfth century.

The Norman nave was built by Aethelwold, who was the first, prior and bishop.

Experts who discovered the foundation of the original apse to be of rude masonry say that this indicates native Norman workmanship.

The choir is ornate and beautiful. The beautiful east window, with its fine tracery, is said to be one of the finest in existence. The tracery lights have glass representing part of the Last Judgment.

Below the window is a monument to Archbishop Paley. This archbishop lived from 1743 to 1805 and was the author of "Evidences of Christianity," a highly prized work. He is buried in the north aisle.

Interesting legendary scenes from the lives of St. Anthony and St. Cuthbert and St. Augustine are painted on the backs of the stalls.

President Wilson, during his European trip, visited Carlisle, which was his mother's girlhood home.

Homesteaders Increase
on Michigan Farm Land

LANSING, Mich.—(P)—Homesteaders in Michigan increased from an average of 20 to 89 last year.

Although the state has 1,250,000 acres classified as homestead land and 2,000 applicants for farms last year, only 89 were granted because most of the land is unfit for farming. Only abandoned farms, with improvements, were turned over to homesteaders.

Closing of factories caused many to seek homesteaders, on which families are able to raise enough to eat and go tax free for five years. But the government expects most of the farms back on its hands as soon as factory whistles begin to blow for most of the land is poor.

400 to Write Pedigree
of English Vocabulary

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—(P)—Writing the pedigree of every one of the 100,000 words in the English language at the time of the "golden age" of English literature is the task to which Prof. Charles C. Fries of the University of Michigan has set himself.

He will have 400 volunteer readers, mostly college professors. As they read 18th and 17th century books they will copy on slips of paper passages which illustrate meanings assigned to words in use at that time. Between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 slips will be checked and classified, it is estimated.

The dictionary is one of a series of "period" dictionaries intended to show development of the language.

He is 6 feet 5 inches tall, but is compelled to look up to the Cougar's new freshman center, Robert Houston of Tacoma, Wash.

Houston measures 6 feet 7 inches and is promising varsity lumber.

Clean Stream Campaign
Speeded by Unemployed

DETROIT, Mich.—(P)—Programs for unemployment are speeding construction of sewage disposal plants and the campaign for clean fishing streams in Michigan. Communities have made much progress in such work in the past year.

Grand Rapids spent $400,000, Flint $600,000, Dearborn is constructing a plant to cost $500,000, Traverse City is building a $245,000 plant, Muskegon Heights has placed a new plant in operation, Escanaba is building a $150,000 plant, and Lake Odessa, Hastings Harbor Springs and Waukegon are getting ready to open new plants.

Brothers Team to Meet

WA. STATE CORRE.—The state of Washington has today received the body of H. W. McBride, the person charged with the murder of the late George Washington. McBride was killed by the police of the Federal Bureau of Investigation at Paris, Nov. 12.

Assistant District Attorney P. L. Wilson had the statement introduced over the objections of defense attorneys who claimed that the confession was obtained involuntarily and by means of promises by officers of immunity of prosecution for McBride.

McBride, a Dallas man, is being tried on charges of robbery with firearms in connection with the frustrated bank robbery and the abduction of Bob Cunningham, Ferris night watchman. The statement named as his accomplices Schuyler Marshall, Jr., former Dallas county sheriff, Herbert Soles, Dallas sportsman, and J. Robert Kelly, of Dallas. All have been indicted in the crime while Marshall was acquitted last week on one of the charges.

Law Fails to Act, Citizens Go Into Action

LA GRANGE, Ga.—(P)—Impatient at the failure of officers to halt the operations of a big liquor still, citizens of a rural community near here seized the still Thursday and dumped it on the court house plaza.

Frank Hudson, spokesman for the raiding party, said residents of the community had grown "sick and tired" of the still operations and seized it after officers failed to find it, although he said they had been advised of its location.

R. B. Carter, chief of county police said he had heard nothing of the still until it was dumped on the plaza. "We certainly would have found it if we had been notified," he added.
